

Title: Just looking for a friend

Description: Setting up an online profile in search of a female companion is a brand new adventure for me, but is a journey that I am looking forward to, and hopefully my experience will be as plentiful as I've imagined it to be. Before I go into further detail of what exactly I am looking for, allow me to give a brief description of myself: My name is Bishop LOTT, I'm 36, years old, 6'3" in height, 220, pounds and I'm originally from Los Angeles, CA. Never one to embellish his own character, I'm just an over all well ~~rounded~~ rounded type of guy. I'm extremely easy to get along with and my personality meshes seamlessly with just about anyone. My first impression will be my last impression. Due to my life's experiences, I can converse on an endless array of conversation topics, from ~~new~~ music to poetry to politics to economics and all areas in between but, my greatest quality (in my opin is my ability to listen and understand.) As my title implies, all that I'm looking for is a friend. Nothing more, nothing less. Just Someone who's down to earth, with whom I can share my thoughts with and vice versa. Now, if something more intimate spawns out of this friendship, then it will be welcomed with open arms. With that being said, if you like what you've read thus far and you're interested, then feel free to contact me any time (Via Access Corrections.com Email) OR ✕
