Tyra Banks has spent a day in jail to prepare for the second season of her US chat show.

The former model asked to be treated like any other female prisoner during her stay, and admits that she was shocked by what she experienced.

"It was one of the most shocking, eye-opening and terrifying experiences of my life. I felt violated," Banks is quoted by The Sun as saying.

"I was shocked to learn that the majority of women in prison are there because of their husbands or boyfriends. A lot faced life sentences and they could be from all walks of life. They could be your mother, your sister, even your daughter.

"These women truly touched my heart and what I learnt definitely changed my life forever."
